

Like a mould transfers a form to the created object, so the construction transfers the architectural formulation to the built work. A social fact is transferred into and embodied by the built work and can be objectively deduced, under appropriate conditions, by an observer.

Performance of the materialization makes a connection between an immaterial and a material thing and makes it a compound. It ends up in this case as a building.